seconded the gangway of the Mayflower, all stilred in black frock coats and bliny slik hats, the band sounded three ruffles and then played a march. Al the head of the gangway Commander Winslow received the envoys, and as they stepped to the deck they were greeted by Mr. Petree. They were recorted inmediately to the cabin, where the President was awaiting them.

Their reception was brief and was as devoid of formality as the nature of the occasion would permit. Baron Komira and Minister Takahira shook hands with the President, the cordinity of the greeting being unmistakable. As the representative of his Emperor, Baron Komura then extended his thanks to President Roosevelt and through him to the American people for the interest they had manifested in the pending peace negotiations, expressing particularly his gratitude to the President for the friendliness he had shown in initiating the negotiations which had resulted in the plerisure they were to have to-day. The President assured Baron Komura that he had found great pleasure in taking the steps Aoward what he hoped would be a permanent peace between two great nations.

The exchanges, if they so may be termed, were entirely informal. No set addresses were delivered.

Baron Komura then presented to the President the twelve members of his suite and the President in turn lutroduced the envoys to the army and hava officers present, after which, with Baron Komura and Minister Takahira, he retired to an inner cabin for a brief consultation prior to the arrival of the aussian mission.

The cruiser Chattanooga, with the Russian envoys on board, anchored a third of a mile from the Mayflever at 1:05 P. M. and fifteen minutes later the Chattanooga's nincteen-gun salute announced the departure of the Russians. A few minutes afterwards the form of M. Witte, Russia's chief plenipotentlary, appeared at the starboard gangway of the Mayflower. He was followed by Baron Rosen, the Russian ambassador and second peace envoy, and eight members of his suite. They were received precisely as the Japanese had been, and they, too, were ushered into the cabin where the President was in waiting to receive them. During the reception of the Russian mission, the Japanese envoys and the members of their suites were in one of the forward cabins.

With notable cordiality President Rosevelt shook hands with M. Wite and Baron Rosen, exchanging with them informal, but hearty personal felicitations. After receiving the members of the suite and presenting all in turn to his personal guests, the President then brought the two sets of envoys together, introducing them formally to one another.

Envoys Shake Hands.

It was a notable scene as the diminutive Baron Komura shook hands with the glant Witte at the Instance of the President of the United States.

The greetings of the members of the two special missions were distinctly formal, but not the slightest suggestion of enmity was shown on either side. Neither by word nor by action did they indicate, even by indirection, anything but the utmost cordinity.

Careful to avoid any strain, President Roosevelt, as soon as possible after the introductions, suggested that the party proceed to the main saloon, where luncheon was in waiting. The President himself led the party, followed in order by M. Witte, Baron Komura, Ambassador Rosen and Minister Takahira. Even the formation of this little procession involved a helicate diplomatic problem, but it was agreed that the President solved it admirably.

Although the luncheon was served with the other guests standing, the President secorted the four envoys to chairs in one corner of the saloen, and in half a minute, through act and delicacy, the whole party engaged in animated conversation over their dishes. The conversation was generally in French, as M. Witte stanks very little English. Baron Rosen and Baron Komura chatted as if they had been lifelong friends, and Minister Takahira at no time particularly communicative, entered into the conversation with zest and interest.

Before the luncheon had proceeded far President Roosevelt rose from his chair, and turning to the assemblage, raised his hand for silence. In an instant there was a hush. Bowing to the envoys, President Roosevelt said:

The Federal officers make no attempt to conceal the fact that the situation is serious, but they say it is not without hope, and that success is possible, in spite of the headway the fever has gained, particularly in the foreign neighborhoods, below Canal Street.

The fact that the infection in the first, fourth, sixth and seventh municipal districts, which are above Canal Street and constitute modern New Orleans, is relatively, small, leads to the hope that vigilant observation of all cases in that quarter, while the more direct campaign progresses below will emble the authorities to keep more than half of the city free from serious infection. Of the deaths to date only five have occurred above Canal Street, and of them four were Italians who left the infect ed neighborhood in the vicinity of the French market, and the fifth was a merchant who did business, in that quarter. Of the cases, except those most recently reported, all have recovered or are on the way to recovery.

The trouble on Lake Borogne, between Mississippi guards and the Louisiana Naval Brigade is considered to have ended. So oncouraging were the conditions to-day that Governor Bianchard sent orders to Commander Bostick to withdraw part of his force. In his telegram to Commander Bostick the Governor said:

"If the Mississippi patrol boat Graco he properly in the service of the United States hospital bureau you cannot selze her. Am not fighting the Federal government. Am expecting advices from Dr. Wasdin and Secretary Shaw."

Dr. Wasdin advised to-day that the Mississippi boats were not exceeding troir rights, and Secretary Shaw's telegram, indicating that the government would have full charge of the quarantine between Louisiana and Mississippi, was taken to mean that Louisiana rights would be fully protected by the Marine Hospital service and the Treasury Department.

Prayer For Peace.

(By Associated Press.)

COOPERSTOWN, N. Y., August 5,—In view of the approaching session of the peace commission from Russia and Japan at Portamouth, N. H., a form of prayer for use in the Episcopal churches of the Diocese of New York has been set forth by Bishop Potter in an official notice. The prayer follows:

"Almighty God, whose is the spirit of unity and concord, and who makes the men to be of one mind in an house, be, we bessech Thee, with Thy servants who shall soon assemble on these shores to seek for a basis of peace. Overrule their deliberations with Thy heavenly wisdom; fill them with the spirit of brotherhood, and so hasten the day when all men shall beat their swords into plowshares and their spears into pruning hooks; when Thy children shall be taught of the Lord, and when great shall be the peace of Thy children. All of which we ask through Jesus Christ, our Lord. Amen."

AMERICAN DIPLOMATS EXPECT PEACE TREATY

Believed in Washington That Result of Conference Soon to Begin at Portsmouth Will Be End of War in the Far East.

(From Our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., August 5.—
Marrican diplomatis in Washington, using the term to designate officials and attaches of the State Department, who keep in closest touch with foreign matters, expect the conference of Russian and Japanese envoys, which begins at Portsmouth, N. H., next week, to result in a treaty of peace between Russia and Japan. The public has probably become more or less discouraged recontly, because of the attitude of Russia. The attitude of the Czar, who has let it be known in two statements that he is not willing to accept any terms not highly honorable to his empire, has bean to indicate that the war party was again in control at court and that Nichials, who appears to be willing and ready at all times to yield to the indicate of whichever party seeks to control him, had given himself up to the reactionists or the grand ducal clique. The State Department, it is belleved, does not astach great importance to statements emmanting from the Craz, and still less to those coming from M. Sergius Witte. A Serious Cutting Affray Between Two Negro

THE DEMOCRATIC COMMITTEE

Mr. Willis C. Pulliam Resigns As Secretary, and Mr. C. C. Jones Elected to Position.

Manchester Bureau, Times-Dispatch, 1 No. 1102 Hull Street. J With a gaping wound in his right lung, John Spencer, a negro laborer, living at No. 15 West Eighth Street, Manchester, lies at the boarding house of Lucy Holmes, also colored, in probably a dying condition. His plight is the tresuit of a savage attack by Walter Windsor, also colored and a resident of Manchester.

Several days ago, it is said, the two men quarreled over some trivial matter and one ordered the other to "vamoose" the boarding house, where both lived. A temporary amnesty between the two belikerents was effected, however, and the embers of their wrath smouldered till last night about 10:30, when the men met on Eighth Street, between Bainbridge and Hull Streets, and Windsor carved Spencer with a razor about the breast in true butcher style. Spencer retaliated with a heavy stick, and as a consequence Windsor is at the Manchester Police Station with a shattered Jawbona and possibly a broken skull.

Dr. Edward G. Hilk, No. 115 West Twelfth Street, attended the darkies, who were arrested by Officer R. C. Jones.
